The Nursing Association Re-elected Duration Officers—Made Plans For Future

The Rockland District Nursing Association stood pat on its officers at Friday's well attended annual meeting, returning to office for the fifth time John M. Richardson as president; William J. Sullivan, vice president; Allston Smith, secretary and Donald C. Leach, as treasurer. While the men in the group felt they were entitled to be relieved it was spirit of the meeting that being familiar with the association's war time setup they should continue through the present fiscal year. Treasurer Leach accepted in order to keep the old slate unbroken but regretfully asked to be relieved at an early date due to the fact that his present business connections keep him off the main business section.

Miss Eliza Steele, the Association's public health nurse, presented her report informally and received a rising vote of commendation. Plans for the future work were discussed and a considerable extension of the plans for the post-war period including a second nurse. High praise was given the Nurses Aides for their assistance to Miss Steele which has made possible the incredible amount of public health work carried through during this peak load year.

The Association came into existence Sept. 1, 1940, stepping into the critical situation for this city brought about by the forced abandonment of the Public Health Service branch of the work of Knox County Chapter, American Red Cross. The chapter's step was mandatory in line with the policy of National Red Cross to give up Public Health Nursing, a situation further complicated by the failure of the preceding year of Rockland's Community Chest.

From the first the public has stood squarely behind the Association and its officers and trustees are determined that the public trust be kept green.

Saturday's Launching

Last Craft On Stocks At Snow's Yard Will Be Sent Overboard

The stocks will be free of ships at Snow's yard Saturday after the launching of A.T.A.-214, originally intended as a net tender, but converted in the latter days of construction into a fleet tug.

This completes the construction of six chips under a contract calling for net tenders, the last two of which have been converted into fleet tugs.

The launching will take place at 10:45 a. m. and the craft will be christened by Miss Patricia Adams, daughter of Parker Adams, the yard's assistant superintendent.

The craft will probably be ready to go into commission in November. The officer personnel has not yet been assigned.

Stands By While Glen Cove Bathers Disport—Unwelcome Visitor

Bathers at Glen Cove were astonished Friday afternoon to spy the fin of a large fish moving slowly above the waves. Four-year-old Joyce Gregory daughter of Mrs. Charles L. Gregory, was especially near, and her mother dashed to her side. Mrs. Barbara (Waldron) Loughry was also dangerously close. Only women and children were present at the time, but they succeeded in driving the fish away.

Later James Moore, with a 32 rifle and C. E. Gregory, grandfather of Joyce Gregory, with a 38 revolver, appeared and kept watch while the bathers continued their enjoyment. It is thought the fish may have been a mackerel shark or horse mackerel, as there were many small mackerel in the bay that day.

nounces that a meeting of all teachers will be held at the High School Building at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon.

He reports that no major repairs have been made during the summer. Repairs made include completion of steel stairway treading, patching of gymnasium floor and plastering first floor corridor at the Tyler School; seats refinished and extensive repairs to wooden fire escape at Purchase Street School and the changing of door to swing out, at Benner Hill School.

Supt. Lunt states that a 28-passenger bus for transportation of pupils from the Highlands and from Camden Street has been ordered and is expected shortly; that a four-year program of repairs to school buildings is being formulated and that a survey of lighting facilities in school buildings is being studied by the school committee.

The list of teachers approved by the School Board follows:
High School: Joseph H. Blaisdell, principal; Allston E. Smith, submaster and English; Dorothy Ludwick, English; Ivy Hart, Mathematics and biology; Raymond D. Bowden, history and physical education; Ella M. Galtombe, civics; Lewis C. Sturtevant, sciences; Christine Norwood, English; Marion

BLACK & GAY WIN AWARD

Flag Representing "A" Achievement Will Soon Be Presented To The Concern

Two plants of a Maine food processing company have been named to receive the War Food Administration's Achievement "A" award, Charles M. Quinn, War Food Administration District Representative announced today. The concern is the Black & Gay Cannery, Inc. with factories at Thomaston and Brooks.

In announcing the award, Mr. Quinn explained that the WFA "A" is given to food processors who have achieved excellent production results and is the highest possible recognition from the Government for wartime food production.

At peak season 130 persons are employed in the Brooks plant in the processing of green and wax beans, corn, applesauce, apples. More than one-half of the employees are women. A large part of the total production is destined for Army and Navy use.

Seventy persons are employed at the Thomaston plant in processing blueberries, clams, mussels, and crabmeat for both Army and civilian use. The processing of mussels is new in this country according to plant officials.

The "A" award, which is represented by a flag designed to fly over the plant, will be presented by a representative of the Army or Navy at formal ceremonies to be held within the next few weeks. In addition a representative of the War Food Administration will present pins denoting individual co-operation.

The Black Cat

(By The Roving Reporter)

"We found out what happened to those German Generals who received their 'just punishment.' It seems they were temporarily suspended."—Ed Pointer in the Boston Globe.

Now if I had been hung I should think I was "permanently" suspended.—The Black Cat in (The Courier-Gazette).

I can't help wondering what my readers would have thought.

A local produce dealer who caught a rat delving into the depths of a choice honeydew melon was irate. But you could scarcely blame the rodent.

A Rockland industrial concern once had a foreman of foreign extraction who had never quite mastered the English language. One day he was called to the phone by a party in a distant town, who wanted information on a subject of importance. The foreman talked rapidly and excitedly, and to those listening he seemed to have a corner on the conversation. About 20 minutes later the same parties called the Rockland concern and the man on the other end of the wire said: "Say can you tell me what that feller said?"

I always read the "Globe Man's Daily Story," and felt a personal interest in the one which appeared in Wednesday's issue. It read: "Once, it is said, the late Edward Bok, the editor, set out thousands of crocus plants along the highway adjoining his home. 'It's foolish to plant flowers beyond your fence,' friends told him. 'People will steal them.' But Bok took measures of his own. He set up a conspicuous sign: 'These flowers are under the protection of the public.' And not a blossom was ever taken."

Sending good luck to The Black Cat, Capt. Charles H. Nyes repeats that there are plenty of jobs on the boats in New York Harbor—and "plenty of sights," he adds. In response to several inquiries his address is "Capt. Charles H. Nye, 17 Battery Place, New York City, N. Y. Room 1213.

From a Samoset guest yesterday came words of enthusiastic approval for the series of articles on contract bridge, two installments of which have appeared in The Courier-Gazette.

At last it has happened—red pants have struck Main street. The young man who wore them should have colored his toenails to match.

Book Review

K. S. F.

Conduct Yourself Accordingly. Authors, Margaret Culkin Banning, in collaboration with Mabel Louise Culkin. Published by Harper & Brothers, New York.

In this book one can find much which points to better ways of going at things. Conduct is an expression of a way of life. It points to an awareness of the rights of others. Creed and social position, nationality or needs of living economies, have no direct influence. Never better time than the present to think clearly on these points of view.

Good taste in society behavior, kindness and tolerance were never more needed than at this nearing time of peace. This Harper publication is worthy of world study. There are excellent lessons to be learned here and now.

"Conduct," said one author, "is as important as the provisions of peace for the months to come, and study the need of all for best conduct of both minds and speech." We must be alert to needs of other conditions in this world's great population and think and see clearly if best results are to be attained. A book full of meat.

The Rotary Club

An Interesting Story On Crop Conditions Told By County Agent Wentworth

Rotarians and guests Friday heard an interesting story of the situation in agriculture told by Ralph C. Wentworth, Knox and Lincoln county agent.

"Crops of many things this year are the largest for some time, despite the fact that farmers are up against it for labor and machinery, but there is more machinery this year than last," Mr. Wentworth said.

He referred to the wet Fall last year which prevented ploughing until Spring, and said that May was the driest for some time, in fact the whole Summer had been exceptionally dry. This condition had a bad effect on many products of the soil.

Blueberry bushes looked good this Spring, but a cutworm which bothered a lot about 15 years ago showed up and ruined a large part of the crop, so that the yield this year will be about 25 percent of normal. Next year it is planned to check the lands of large blueberry growers each week.

Referring to gardens, Mr. Wentworth said that farmers are doing a good job this year and that Victory gardens are a great help. Some of the effects of the dry weather could have been minimized if a mulch of straw or hay had been used. Beans have been hit hard by the Mexican bean beetle, which is increasing each year, but which may be killed by dusting up under the leaves. A rust has appeared on many beans making them unfit for canning.

Speaking of corn, Mr. Wentworth said that there was not very much corn earworm this year, and that one of the best ways to combat this worm was to put a little mineral oil in every ear after the silk has turned brown. The European corn borer is not causing any great trouble this year.

Cucumbers are being damaged by a beetle and the squash bug may come later. Potato crops look small around here, but a good crop is looked for in Aroostook County as there has been considerable rain up that way. Tomatoes are very good this year.

Dairymen have produced more milk this year, but the hay crop is short and the pastures poor at the present time. A government subsidy is keeping the production up. He told of the good work done through the Dairy Herd Improvement Association, which has a man visit each herd once a month, making a careful check to ascertain which cows are paying and which are not. He also told of how much better stock is being produced through artificial breeding.

Concluding he said that there was an overproduction of poultry and that he expected a very good crop of apples. He urged that individuals can all they possibly can.

Fifty-nine were present, including 43 Rockland Rotarians. Visitors were: William Cullen of Lewiston, Harry Thompson of Boston, Willard Sprague of Cambridge, Charles E. Lord of Camden, Harvey C. Patterson of Skowhegan, F. E. Cozad of Westbrook, Frank E. Poland of Boston, and Otto J. Swenson of Troy, N. Y. Guests of members were: Perley E. Brackett of Concord, N. Gifford of Cambridge and Sidney Humes of Washington.

The speaker was introduced by Lucius E. Jones, program chairman. Dr. Walter P. Conley led the group singing, with Stafford M. Congdon at the piano.

WAS SOME "MILKER"

A registered Holstein-Friesian cow in the dairy herd owned by Round Top Farms, Damariscotta, has recently completed 334-day production record of 643 pounds of butterfat and 18,743 pounds of milk. The Holstein-Friesian Association of America announces. This is more than three and one-half times the production of the average dairy cow in the nation. Her official name is Roto Matador Shepard Julia 38. She was milked twice daily and was 4 years 6 months of age when she began her test period. Testing was supervised by University of Maine in co-operation with The Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

[EDITORIAL]

THE FARMERS ARE FOR DEWEY

The farmers of the nation, except those who till the soil below the Mason and Dixon line, are strong for Dewey, two to one being the ratio as found by the Gallup Poll. In the Mid-West, according to the straw vote, the percentage was 62 for Gov. Dewey and 38 for President Roosevelt. These figures are highly interesting, but the analysis of the vote is even more so, for statistics show that eight years ago Roosevelt was favored by 56 percent of the farmers. Four years of Roosevelt and that support had dropped to 45 percent, while, as already told, it is today but 38 percent. The interviews conducted by the Gallup Poll revealed three principal farm complaints against the Roosevelt administration—wastefulness and extravagance in allocating public funds for non-military purposes; criticism of the Administration's management of domestic affairs; and bitter farm criticism of Roosevelt's labor policy. Probably there are no greater students of national affairs than those hardy tillers of the soil, and nobody who views the tightening or loosening of Uncle Sam's purse strings more carefully. His day's work over your farmer seats himself comfortably by the fireside to read the latest news comments, to study official reports and to listen to the latest news reports. This one he does not cast his newspaper aside and go to the pictures, he cogitates on what he has learned and goes to sleep after a careful consideration of the ins and outs of national government. The farmer is first, last and always, a political student—and a discriminating one.

WHAT WILL WILKIE SAY

Wendell Willkie still has everybody guessing as to the attitude he will assume before the national political campaign is well under way. The editors are guessing, the radio commentators are speculating and the cartoonists are adding to the general confusion. The proposed conference between Willkie and President Roosevelt may have an important bearing on the subject, but when will that conference be held. Willkie is said to have expressed the wish that it be after the Presidential election, which may or may not be significant. The underlying thought in Willkie's mind, in spite of his bitter disappointment, is not being renominated, seems to be the world's future welfare rather than the election of either Roosevelt or Dewey.

THE DAY MUST COME SOON

The radio commentators, and others, who thought the European war would be ended before Labor Day seem unlikely to have their predictions dispelled. Before Thanksgiving seems more likely, according to our guess, although with defeat staring at them from every angle, leg weary from running, and with oil and other supplies constantly being blasted by the Allied air forces, one must confess to amazement that Hitler can hold the sack much longer.

THOSE "SECRET WEAPONS"

Delaying action can sometimes delay for a long while; the Allied supply system is already under a heavy overstrain that cannot well be relieved until more ports are available, and the mere job of getting up and deploying our forces is bound to take time, even without heavy opposition. If they can hold their armies and their people to it (and despite a lessening of morale the German troops are still for the most part willing to put up a vicious fight) the Nazis may be afforded the opportunity to regroup for a stubborn last-ditch defense that could not quickly be overcome. Their own public answer to the crisis at which they have arrived is a triple one: the purge of the army command and its subordination to "fanatic" Nazi generals; one, last, "total" total mobilization, and the promise of "secret weapons." As a means of winning the war these measures are fantastic. Goebbels at best can tap only dribbles of new man power. The secret weapons are already long delayed and it is most unlikely that anything which could now be produced, however horrible its effect, could alter the basic military calculation.

It could, however, prolong the struggle, as the "V-1" flying bombs have already tended to do by diverting air power and other energies to the defense against them. The Nazi solution seems to be a fight to the bitter end so desperate that it will involve the German people inextricably in Hitlerism's downfall and so provide the party survivors with a basis on which they might in some future time rebuild their influence over Germany. If they succeed in imposing that grim solution on their people, it will mean that the end can only finally be achieved by cutting up the German armies in the field and bit by bit destroying the physical ability of the remnants to continue. It was much in that way that the American Civil War had to be brought to a close; in Europe today the process might well take a long time and a heavy toll of life.

One cannot say. The conditions of victory have been created, but the war's end may still be months away; there may not, indeed, even be any single "victory day," but only a long, diminishing struggle with Hitlerism's dying remnants. One can say only that the harder the blows struck now the sooner we shall get it over with. —Herald Tribune

WORKING FOR VICTORY

Moses Lake, Washington.—Ruth A. Mansfield, WAC from Rockland, found a new life when she entered the army. The fact that she is quite proficient in the service is evidenced by the fact that she has been promoted from private to corporal at Moses Lake army airfield. Formerly a store clerk, she now finds excitement in her job as driver for the transportation section of this Fourth Air force base. Corporal Mansfield, a graduate of Camden High School, is the daughter of Mrs. Mildred Mansfield of 666 Main street, Rockland.

An Eighth AAF Fighter Command England—Staff Sergeant Arthur Lind, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lind, 9 Linden street, Rockland, is a member of a unit which has received a commendation from Brigadier-General Jesse C. Auton, Wing Commander, for its contribution in aiding an Eighth Air Force fighter group to become operational in eleven days after arrival on this station.

The group set a new Eighth Fighter Command record when it was able to engage in combat in less time than it had taken any other fighter group to prepare for operational flying.

Sergeant Lind, who entered the Army in June, 1942, was formerly employed by the Reed & Prince Manufacturing Company.

Port Oglethorpe, Ga.—Private Ruby J. Elliott, daughter of Mrs. W. H. Elliott, 13 Hall street, Rockland, who has been stationed at the Third Training Center of the Women's Army Corps here, has been assigned to WAC Detachment, Hdqtrs. Ferrying Division at Cincinnati.

Pvt. William Marston, U. S. Marine Corps, has returned to Parris Island, S. C., following a leave spent with his wife and son, who make their home on West Meadow road, Rockland.

Everett Oney of Rockland who is on duty at the Hingham (Mass.) Naval Depot, is home on a furlough. By way of recreation the former Rockland ball player is covering third base for the Cohasset team, and hitting the old pill at a .387 clip.

Roland Sukeforth, late of the Rockland police force, is home from Camp Croft, S. C. where he has completed his boot training. The work has been of a very strenuous character, and "Sukey" says it is no place for weaklings. He donned the mitts several times but found that his 38 years counted against him when he came in contact with the youngsters. He is loud in his praise of the way the men are used in the Army, with plenty to eat and the very best of care. When he rejoins the service it will be at Camp Meade, Md.

Staff Sergeant and Mrs. William Love have returned to Corona, Long Island, after spending a week at "Azulikit" cottage, Ingraham's Hill, Owl's Head.

Lieut. (j. g.) Julia Anderson has returned to Washington, D. C., after spending a short leave with her mother, Mrs. Anders Anderson of Talbot avenue, Rockland.

Staff Sergeant Robert E. Sadler, son of Mr. (j. g.) and Mrs. Emerson Sadler of Rockland, who has been stationed more than four years at Oahu, Hawaiian Islands, with the operations division of the Army Air Force, arrived home Thursday for a stay of about 30 days in Rockland and Spruce Head.

Staff Sergeant John F. Karl, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold L. Karl of Rockland, who has spent 14 months in the South Pacific with the Fifth Army Air Force, arrived home yesterday on furlough. He was met in Boston by his wife, who accompanied him home.

"Old Home Day"

To Be Big Feature At Windsor Fair Sunday—Other Attractions

One of the biggest features of this year's Windsor Fair is to be the "Old Home Day" Celebration to be held next Sunday. Included in the entertainment will be several contests which will permit Maine residents, young and old, who wish to enter, to win both "fame and fortune."

These contests will include a jittubug dance contest, a square-dance championship contest, bicycle races for boys and girls, and as the grand contest event of the day, a Grange championship tug-of-war, all of which will carry substantial prizes.

"Smiley and Sue—Co." popular hill-billy entertainers, who have appeared through our United States and with the U.S.O. abroad, will be headliners on the "Old Home Day" program.

All who wish to enter the various contests should write at once to R. G. Kennison, Chairman Entertainment Committee Windsor Fair, 225 Water street, Augusta, Maine.

The Windsor Fair dates are Sept. 1, 2, 3 and 4, the last dates falling on Labor Day. This year, the Fair is preceded by a three-day advance Race Meet, beginning today and carrying through Aug. 30 and 31.

This means six big days of pari-mutuel racing and four big days of old-fashioned Agricultural Fair complete with Midway concessions, spectacular big-time vaudeville acts, Exhibition Hall features, pulling contests by horses, oxen, livestock exhibits, a daily auction of farm and household equipment, and many other events and exhibits to be announced.

Rockland's Main street was enlivened yesterday morning when the 22 boys of Owl's Head Camp for Boys at Ash Point, nearing the end of their season, paid a visit to Rockland. These boys, ranging from 6 to 16, come from Massachusetts, and are quartered in a large building at the former Paris Rockliff place at the end of the Ball's-hack road. The camp, now established four years, is directed by Ralph Chester, who teaches in Worcester Academy. Benjamin Parker, a teacher in the Athol, Mass., schools is counselor. Mrs. Chester and Mrs. Parker assist in conducting the camp which closes Thursday. Activities include rowing, fishing, swimming, horseback riding, rifle, baseball, soccer, bowling and movies.

Rockland had its first snowfall of the season last Friday afternoon. Not enough to track a rabbit by, and snowshovels were not called into play.

Bishop Loring Here

Present At Closing Of The Episcopal Church School—Annual "Fairless Fair"

Bishop Oliver L. Loring of Portland was present Thursday night for the closing of the church school which has been held at St. Peter's Episcopal Church, the past two weeks. Bishop Loring presented each of the children with a diploma for work accomplished.

The children, about 60, were instructed in the services of the church and in craft work and play. Similar schools have been conducted throughout the State this summer, under the direction of diocesan rural workers, Miss Carman Wolff of Melrose, Mass., assisted by Miss Margaret McBride of Vermont, Miss Marjorie Libby of Waterbury, Conn., and Miss Joyce Pound of Millinocket.

The annual fairless fair of the church was held in connection with the closing of the school. A pageant entitled, Fellowship in the Church, written and arranged by Miss Wolff was presented at 5 o'clock. Bernard Kaler was the reader and all of the children who attended the school, took part.

The new floor in the sanctuary, given by the family of the late Edward E. Rankin, in his memory, was blessed at 6 o'clock. A buffet supper, planned for out of doors, was served in the Undercroft because of unfavorable weather conditions, and in the evening Bishop Loring gave a lecture on the churches throughout the State, which was illustrated by colored slides of the churches, the peoples and the landscape. The closing ceremony was held around the altar in the churchyard.

The supper was in charge of Mrs. Gilmore W. Soule, who had the assistance of Mrs. Arthur Marsh, Mrs. Frank Thompson, Jr., Mrs. Frank P. Harding, Mrs. Clifford Ladd and Mrs. William Brewster. Hamburgers and hot dogs were sold by the Young People's Fellowship, with Miss Joan Abbott, president, in charge.

Capt. Edward P. Barrows, son of former Gov. Lewis O. Barrows is dead in France from wounds received in action. He had been overseas since June 10 and had been awarded the silver star for gallantry in action. Captain Barrows was president of his class at University of Maine four years and as captain of the varsity football team won the admiration of Knox County football fans who attended the Maine games.

Rockland Lions and guests held an outing at Vinalhaven Sunday, making the round trip on the Vinalhaven II. A feast of lobsters and clams was enjoyed at Smith Point, where the group picnicked. Vinalhaven Lions, including President Gilchrist, O. V. Drew, Charles Webster and Leon Sanborn, with Mrs. Drew, Mrs. Gilchrist and Mrs. Sanborn, greeted the group; assisted in obtaining the lobsters and clams, and otherwise added to the happiness of the occasion. Those on the trip were: Dr. and Mrs. Blake B. Annis, Robert Annis, Russell Staples, Jr., of Rockport; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur F. Senter and children, Richard and Carolyn; Nathan Berliawsky, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Howard P. Crockett, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. John E. Doherty

Death Of Aged Citizen Who Took Part In Many Activities

John E. Doherty, one of Rockland's oldest and best known citizens died yesterday morning at his home 115 Talbot avenue, after a long period of illness.

Born in Thomaston, April 27, 1858, he was a son of John and Mary (Hanrahan) Doherty. His father was long identified with the Knox County time business, digging rock in his three quarries for F. Cobb & Co.

Rounding out his public school education in his home city with a year's course at Bryant & Stratton's business college in Boston, he returned to Rockland and clerked 10 years in the grocery store kept by his brother, the late Cornelius Doherty, later becoming foreman for his uncle, Cornelius Hanrahan, in the time business.

In 1900 Mr. Doherty began what proved to be an extended connection with transportation companies—first as clerk at Maine Central wharf for the Maine Central Railroad which was then operating the steamer Frank Jones between Rockland and Portland, and the steamer Pemquid between Rockland and Dark Harbor. In 1906 he went to Boston to engage in organization work for the Maine Coast Transportation Company of which Gen. Brigham was president.

Three years later he was back in Rockland, serving as deputy sheriff, under the late Sheriff Adelbert J. Tolman. Serving three years in that capacity he became a guard at the Maine State Prison under Warden Waterhouse, and it was while at the Thomaston institution that he compiled the prison records from 1854 to 1915, an extremely difficult and painstaking task.

Next he was found in the Rockland office of the American Express Company and from here he went to Presque Isle, assigned to the management of this office.

A year later he was transferred to Portland as transfer man and spare messenger. There he remained until 1929, when he once more came to Rockland to serve one and one-half years as day clerk in the Narragansett Hotel.

By older citizens he will be remembered as an ardent musician, playing in the old Meadow Band, Meserve's Quintet and "The Big Four" Orchestra. He was a cornetist of much ability.

In his day he was also a baseball player, found in the line-up of the Drigos and Chickawauks.

Mr. Doherty had been clerk to the Board of Assessors, chairman of the Registration Board four years, chairman of the Democratic City committee five years, and a member of the Democratic State committee. He was a member of St. Bernard's Church.

"Johnny" Doherty was a friend to everybody—liked by young and old because of his genial and companionable nature, and great fund of information on local subjects.

Funeral services will be held at St. Bernard's Church Wednesday at 9 a. m. Interment in Thomaston.

Good Old Days When The North End Water Front Busted With Activity—A Bonus Battle

Rockland, Aug. 26 Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— A day in the cooper shop 50 years ago:

Sun rose red this morning. It will be hot enough to fry eggs on the flat roof by noon, but they must have barrels. The kiln men are filling them as fast as we make them. Prem Post is waiting with his wheelbarrow for a load, so we must get into high gear.

At 11:30 we stop to eat a bite. Now it is high tide. The schooner Ada Ames is hauling in with a load of coal. George Storey is here with two horses to hoist the coal but Hand Bird is on the wharf giving directions. Shovelers are getting anxious to start.

One quart of whiskey is given as a bonus to the man getting his foot on the bottom of the floor of the vessel first. Things are moving fast. A load of kiln wood is going into Perry's Wharf, one to Farrand, one to Rankin, one to Brown Wharf, two to the Point Kilns; and several more waiting in the harbor.

There is plenty of work for everyone. Run up to Uncle John Randlett and see if you can dig out some men to work. "Those were the good old days." E. H. Philbrick

Rev. A. K. Reiton Will Tell Of Hong Kong Horrors Tomorrow Night

The amazing story of an American prisoner who went through the incredible horrors of the invasion of Hong Kong and after that spent 154 days behind barbed wire of a Japanese prison camp will be told Wednesday (tomorrow) night at 7:30 at the Salvation Army Hall.

Rev. A. K. Reiton had spent 34 years in Gospel work in Hong Kong before the terrible weeks when 200,000 were slain and the great city practically destroyed, yet he and his family came through the ordeal and he is furthering his work by carrying the story to all parts of the United States, beginning with the stirring pre-invasion events, concluding with the return to the United States on the Gripsholm.

The public and congregations of all churches are invited to attend this service which will be strictly non-denominational and with admission free. Rev. Mr. Reiton will be accompanied by Rev. and Mrs. H. I. Sheffield the latter being an accomplished musician, Rev. Curtis L. Stanley of the Nazarene Church will preside.

A Scout Protest President Mills Resents The Statement That Donations Are "Begged"

Rockland, Aug. 24. Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— My attention has been called by several of my scouts, now in their country's service, to an article appearing in The Courier-Gazette of Aug. 15, which they feel should be rectified as it appears to be anything but complimentary to the scouts of Rockland.

The article says: "If Boy Scouts would only take this job to their hearts and pick up paper, trash and clean weeds from the sidewalk edge they would not have to beg for donations each year."

The first part of the article can be overlooked, although anyone familiar with the Scout program and the present activities of scouts in work which our government requests them to do would not think of them entering on such a program. But when it is stated that Scouts beg for donations each year, that is going too far. One of the strictest laws of Scouting is that under no circumstances can a Scout ask for funds of any kind from the public for their own use.

Our troops are self-supporting as far as individual troops are concerned. As for my own troop we do not ask help even from our sponsoring institution. So you can see why a statement like that calls forth a storm of protest from the boys many of whom are in the service. They do not care to be called beggars.

If the writer refers to the drive for funds put on each year for Boy Scouts, it would be well to look this matter up and see who puts on this drive and where the money is used. This is obtained from the citizens, by the citizens, to meet Rockland's quota as apportioned to the Rockland district to carry on the work of the State and National Council and is not for the individual use of local troops but is our part in carrying on the organization as a whole.

Will you kindly rectify this statement in order that there may be no misunderstanding regarding the status of Rockland scouts.

Yours in Scouting Albert D. Mills, President Rockland Scout Leaders Club.

Turn To The Sea

Comm'r Greenleaf Hopes Many Returning Veterans Will Seek Livelihood There

Opportunities in the expanding Maine fisheries will be greater than ever after the war as increased business demands more manpower, Commissioner Greenleaf stated today. "It is our hope the many returning service men will consider these possibilities and turn to the sea for their livelihood," he said.

The multitude of new seafood products which have been introduced to the consumer public give some idea of the tremendous possibilities for the future, Greenleaf stated. New methods of marketing fresh fish as well as the canned and frozen product have widened the fisheries horizon and there is no doubt that many of these have already replaced products formerly imported in great quantity for foreign countries, he continued. This trend alone indicates the future need for manpower in the fisheries, he said.

The fisheries offer outdoor work to men needing mental as well as physical relaxation after the nervous tension of war, Greenleaf said. As part of its post war program, the Sea and Shore Fisheries Department will lead every effort to the placement of interested men in the industry, he concluded.

GIRL OVERBOARD

WNU RELEASE

CHAPTER VII

Zorie got up and latched the door again. She again tested the latch. It held.

When she was awakened in the morning, by the phone ringing, the door was open again, but no longer banging, because the ship had stopped rolling.

She waited for Amber to answer it, but Amber did not answer. She was lying on her back. Her face, in the clear, cold light of early morning, was shocking. All color was drained from it, and it was completely relaxed. Her mouth was open a little and she seemed hardly to be breathing. Fascinated by what she saw, Zorie stared. It was not now the face of a ruthless, imperious girl, but that of a girl with no illusions, no faith, no hope.

Zorie snatched up the phone as it started to ring again.

The admiral's voice said heartily: "Good morning, Zorie, good morning! It's a beautiful day—a fine day for work—hm? What do you say we get to work as soon as you've had a bite of breakfast?"

"All right," Zorie said in her melodiously meek voice.

Two dark sleep-drenched eyes were staring at her from Amber Lanning's pillow.

"I wish," she said peevishly, "you'd tell your friends not to phone you so early in the morning."

Zorie stared at her with rebellion boiling in her. She wanted to say, "Oh, do you—really? Well, now, let me tell you something, my fine-feathered friend."

But all she said, in the same meek voice was, "I—I'll tell them."

Miss Lanning, with angry mutterings, rolled over and presented the back of her head, just now a tangle of lustrous dark curls.

Zorie dressed as quietly as she could. She removed from her trunk one of the stenographer's notebooks she had bought yesterday on the way from the San Francisco airport to the pier. She tiptoed to the door.

Miss Lanning flung herself away from the wall. She sat up and glared sleepily at Zorie. Her eyes went to the notebook in Zorie's hand.

"Oh," she said, in a surprised voice, "so you're a stenographer."

"Are you somebody's secretary?"

"In a way."

Miss Lanning stared at her as if she resented Zorie's unresponsiveness, then fell back on her pillow.

She found the dining-room, which was almost empty—it still lacked eighteen minutes of eight a. m.—and a steward directed her to a small table against the wall.

The waiters did not seem to have much to do, but it was a long time before one of them came to her table. He looked insolent, and when he asked for her order, he was almost rude.

She presently felt eyes staring at her. She glanced up. At a table two removed from hers sat the man with scrubby red hair and powerful sloping shoulders—the man she had seen last night outside her room lighting a cigarette and, later, at the Palm Room bar with Winthrop Lanning.

His stare was so absorbed that it did not discern him when her eyes met his. They were expressionless. His long dark face was expressionless. He was searching and searching her face. It was not admiration. It was the most intense concerted inquiry.

Zorie felt the heat of embarrassment and resentment flash into her cheeks. She looked away. A waiter brought him his breakfast. Its main dish was a large thick steak. He carved it and ate it with a ravenousness that appalled her. His expression was bestial. He ate swiftly, bolting the steak, gulping his coffee. Now and then he stared at Zorie. He presently lighted a cigarette, got up and left.

Zorie was finishing her cold coffee when Paul came in and sat down in the empty chair across from her. He looked as if he hadn't slept well. He was haggard and gray and his eyes had the blurred look of suffering.

"Darling, look," he said. "I'm terribly sorry about last night, but this whole thing goes much deeper than you may suspect. I admit I'm jealous of Steve. I've always been jealous of him. But it isn't just that. I know that you haven't had much experience with his kind, and I was so afraid he'd turn your head."

He looked at her with a tentative, hopeful smile. She felt sorry for Paul; sorry for his unhappy, clever, analytical mind.

"Get out of here," his grandfather said shrilly. "Stop annoying me."

them, held a twinkle, as if they shared a secret. He wore blue lounging pajamas and he reminded her more than ever of a great, lazy, dangerous cat.

"Courage, my brave," he said with a conspirator's air. "He's in there. Waiting. And it's going to be pretty tough."

Admiral Duncan, in white ducks and a short-sleeved white shirt with no necktie, was pacing up and down the lanai. He was holding a handful of scraps of yellow paper.

"Sit down, my dear, sit down!" he cried. "It's a fine morning for work, isn't it? I've decided to skip my early years and begin with Annapolis. I'll just start with my first years there—hm?"

Her pencil flew across the pink-lined pages. He never paused in spell proper names. Punctuation, he ignored.

Steve stretched out in a long bamboo chair and put his chin on his hand and smoked cigarettes. He kept his eyes half-closed.

He said, after a half hour of it: "Admiral, nobody will want to read that junk. If you must write a book, why not the story of the family? Begin it with your recollections of early days in the Islands. That's a story. It's wonderful stuff."

Zorie wanted to say, "Oh, boy! Do I agree with you!" But she prudently said nothing.

She lunched alone and returned to

"I'll get to that," the admiral said irritably. "You won't have space for it," Steve drawled. Paul came in. He glanced into the lanai, turned and started out. "Wait a minute," Steve halted him. "The admiral has been dictating nothing but hokey. We'd like to have your opinion."

"I don't want anybody's opinion," the admiral barked. "Count me out of this," said Paul. "Zorie," Steve said, "read some of that last stuff to Paul."

While the admiral fidgeted, she read several pages of it. "Well," Steve said presently, "what do you think of it, Paul?"

"I have a new slogan," Paul answered. "Avoid controversies and you won't wear out so fast. I've been up on the bridge with the skipper. He thinks we're going to have war with Japan any minute. What's your opinion, Admiral?"

"Not for a while," the admiral said. "We have them on the run. Our Far Eastern policy is stiffer than they expected. We've called their bluff. At the proper time, our navy will go out there and blast them off the Pacific—hm?"

Zorie was watching Steve. His expression was dubious. "We hope," he murmured.

"Kurusu and Admiral Nomura are a pair of beggars," the admiral went on. "They were sent to Washington to beg for oil and U. S. trade. They're on their knees because Japan is terrified of our striking power."

Steve was shaking his head. "Japan is playing smart," he said. "She isn't afraid of our striking power. She has plenty of striking power of her own. The popular idea that Japan is a pushover is a mistake. I don't trust Kurusu and Nomura and I'm glad the Hawaiian Station is on battle alert."

"What's your answer to that, Admiral?" Paul asked. His face was sober but Zorie saw the malice in his eyes.

The admiral suddenly glared. "You're trying to distract me from my book!" he said angrily. "I won't have these interruptions! Clear out, both of you!"

Paul sauntered out, but Steve stayed. "Zorie," he said, "what's your opinion?"

"Of war with Japan?" she gasped. "No. The book."

"I'm only an amanuensis," Zorie said promptly. "Well, that's an opinion. Your book stinks, Admiral."

"Get out of here!" his grandfather said shrilly. "Stop annoying me!"

"Look," Steve said patiently. "You want an interesting book, don't you?"

"I'm going to have an interesting book!"

"Why," Steve said gently, "not start with the family background? That's where all autobiographies start. Tell us about the first Duncan—John Paul Jones Duncan—coming to the islands in 1824, giving up his commission and landing in Honolulu with eighty-five cents which he ran up into the finest sugar plantation on—"

"Everybody knows that story," the admiral angrily interrupted. "Do you know it, Zorie?" Steve asked.

"No," Zorie said meekly. "There you are!" Steve cried. He resumed his dictation. But it had nothing to do with early days in the Sandwich Islands. It dealt with his pranks at Annapolis.

It was almost noon when Steve, who had been lounging all this time in the long chair and gazing out over the sparkling blue sea, again interrupted.

"Your amanuensis is a wreck, Admiral," he said. "Go out and grab some fresh air, Zorie. I have a feeling that all this fascinating material will keep."

Zorie was relieved and grateful. She didn't want to be in the same room with Steve any longer. She couldn't keep her eyes off him, or her thoughts away from him.

And come back after lunch," the admiral ordered.

Zorie crossed the other room and opened the corridor door. A man was bending down close to the door. It was the beefsteak eater—Mr. Lanning's friend. There was a cigarette in his mouth. He flicked the wheel of his lighter and lighted it.

Zorie stopped, with the door open, with her hand clutching the knob. There was no question in her mind that this man had been bending down with his ear to the door, listening.

He did not seem at all embarrassed. His black eyes stared at her steadily. A muscle twitched at one corner of his mouth, as it had last night when she had come out of her room and found him lurking in the corridor.

Her impulse to call Steve was so strong that she whirled about, with her mouth open. But she changed her mind. The man was wearing red hair and powerful shoulders was Mr. Lanning's friend, and Mr. Lanning was Steve's friend. And she intended to ask Steve no more questions about his friends.

She closed the door firmly, walked past the man and went on deck.

She looked about the ship for Paul and found him stretched out in a steamer chair reading a thick book by Anna Freud. She wanted to tell him about the eavesdropper, but Paul was obviously displeased by her interruption. He kept glancing back at the page.

He was again being inconsiderate. He had evidently forgotten his morning's anguish. Having reassured himself that he had nothing to fear where Steve was concerned, he had returned her to her niche in his mind—a niche that was doubtless labelled, "Zorie, mine, nothing to worry about."

She lunched alone and returned to

Health Program

Alabama's department of health launched a venereal disease control program which calls for the eventual examination of every person of 14 and 50 for syphilis.

Though blood tests for all persons between 14 and 50 are required by the 1943 state law authorizing the program, the state department of health was given the right to develop and expand the program gradually on a county by county basis, the council of state governments reports.

The state health department under the act is to name the counties including the much needed vitamin C. They are high in calories, contain calcium, protein, phosphorus, iron, thiamine, riboflavin and vitamin A, and they keep their treasure if cooked correctly. One of the best ways to prepare them, and the easiest, is to boil them with their jackets, for the highest percentage of minerals is concentrated close to the skin.

Don't soak them before cooking. Scrub them well, dip them into a kettle of boiling salted water—enough to barely cover the potatoes. Cook until tender and drain at once so that they won't get water logged. Serve them with their jackets; or peel them, season with salt, pepper, a bit of bacon fat and sprinkle with minced parsley.

The admiral's suite. She was disappointed—and glad—that Steve wasn't there. The admiral was down on his hands and knees in the lanai with a large sheet of wrapping paper spread out before him. On it was a crude, elaborate diagram in soft pencil.

Steve walked in. Steve wore a sort white shirt without a tie, and flannels. He peered over Zorie's shoulder.

"What is it?" he asked. "The Battle of Manila Bay," his grandfather answered.

"What," Steve asked coldly, "was the Battle of Manila Bay?"

"Get out of here!" the admiral snapped.

Steve held out his hands imploringly. "Zorie, I ask you! Is this stuff the admiral's been dictating to you pure bilge, or is it pure bilge?"

"Zorie!" the admiral cried, "Hasn't he a lot of nerve telling us how we want to write our book? We're doing all right, aren't we—hm?"

The observance of Believers' Baptism was administered Sunday afternoon by Rev. Hubert Swetnam, at Sandy Shores, South Pond, for Maurice S. Hahn. There was a large attendance and the choir sang several selections.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Teague of Springfield, Mass., who are visiting their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Vivien Teague in Falmouth, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Teague, Miss Bertha Teague and Miss Lucy Teague.

Mr. and Mrs. William Kelso and daughter, Miss Jean Kelso returned Sunday to Wakefield, Mass., after spending a vacation of two weeks with Miss Bertha Starrett.

Meetings of Ivy Chapter, OES, will be resumed Friday, opening feature to be a supper.

Gerald Swetnam of Norwich, Ct., brother of Rev. Hubert Swetnam, new pastor at the Baptist Church, will be present Wednesday at the midweek service. A graduate of the Gordon College, Boston, with plans to enter this Fall the Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Philadelphia, he will deliver the message and will favor with trumpet solos.

A musician of ability, he has played in the Gordon College orchestra, and has been member of the trumpet trio of that college, and as a member of the trip has played in the churches of greater Boston, including Tremont Temple.

Breakfast storms in a series Saturday produced heaps of hail in the streets, equal a whitening of snow. Albert White shoveled up 24 quarts of the pellets, and made ice cream.

He said he could have obtained a much larger quantity had he needed it. The stones varied from the size of a pea to that of a small marble. The leaves were stripped in quantities from trees at the monument, and garden crops in that section were ruined. Lightning struck a willow tree by the river about 50 feet from the home of Mrs. Catherine Wade, shattering five lights of glass, and cracking two others. Mrs. Wade did not feel any shock at the time, but felt the effect afterwards.

The picnic of Ivy Chapter OES, held Friday night at Masevic hall proved delightful and was attended by 80 persons. Games were played after the supper, and the committee was aided by the worthy matron, Mrs. Inez Mathews.

Mrs. Edgar Wiley and infant daughter Carolyn Elaine, born Aug. 14 at Knox Hospital, returned home Thursday.

Baptist young people of this town will present the three-act comedy "Moonlight and Applesauce," Friday night at 8 o'clock in Town Hall. Miss Helen Starrett of Louisville, Ky., spending the Summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester E. A. Starrett, is coach, with Raymond Kenniston the business manager. On the cast will appear Rev. Hubert Swetnam, Mrs. Alfred Wyllie, Miss Ethel Wiley, Miss Joyce Butler, Mrs. Edward Thurston, Alfred Wilson, Robert Wiley, Herbert Moon, Miss Lillian Durrell, Edward Wilson, Mary Norwood, Mrs. Walter Peyler and Miss Jeanette Perry. Specialties will feature the orchestra, and piano solos by Mr. Swetnam.

Hudson—Riutta

Mr. and Mrs. Antto Riutta of North Warren announce the marriage Aug. 5 of their daughter, Elvi Ellen Riutta to Ensign Charles H. Hudson, USN, of West Newton, Mass., son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald P. Hudson.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Hamilton M. Gifford at the Methodist Church in Newtonville, Mass., at 8 o'clock and was followed by a reception.

The bride's attendants were Miss Rennie Polussi of Wellesley, who was maid of honor, and bridesmaids, Miss Ella Riutta, sister of the bride, and Miss Sally Hudson, sister of the groom, of West Newton, Mass. Ensign Richard W. Fava of Roslindale, Mass., was the best man, and the ushers were Van Cortland Lawrence of Brookline, Mass., and Floyd Dodge of Waltham, Mass.

The bride was attired in white satin with lace yoke and finger tip veil with a diara of pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses with orchid corsage in the center.

The maid of honor wore turquoise net and taffeta, and carried yellow roses. The bridesmaids were dressed yellow net and taffeta, and carried pink roses.

Mrs. Riutta, mother of the bride wore dubonnet lace and Mrs. Hudson, mother of the groom was dressed in light blue net over pink taffeta. Both had corsages of gardenias.

Mrs. Hudson, the bride was graduated from Union High School and the Wilfred Academy of Boston. Ensign Hudson, a pilot of a U. S. Navy torpedo bomber was graduated from Newton High School and Northeastern Academy.

Ensign Charles H. Hudson, and Mrs. Hudson were guests of honor Aug. 12 at a buffet supper given by Mr. and Mrs. Antto Riutta at the home of Mrs. William Anttila.

Indians Find Water Lily
Makes a Tasty Dish

The Victoria Regia water lily with its huge floating leaves, up to five or six feet in diameter, is being raised with large and showy white flowers which open only in the evening, and turn pink and wilt after one or two days of glamour. Its fruit, or large seed pods, developed under water, have a pineapple-like scent. They are collected for food by the Indians in some of the South American countries in which the plant is found.

The colonial Spaniards know them as a source of a "luxury farina" or flour for making cakes, and in the Paraguay region the plant is sometimes called in Spanish "water corn," or more colloquially and usually as "water platter" or "frying pan" because of the skillet-like shape of the leaves. These leaves are a favorite haunt of a plover-like bird, the jacana.

The plant was first discovered in 1801 by a German botanist named Haenke, sent to South America by the Spaniards. A few years later it was found in other localities by noted explorers from France, Great Britain and other countries, including such famous travelers as Humboldt, Bonpland, d'Orbigny and Spruce. Following its discovery in British Guiana by Sir Robert Schomburgk about 1837, it was given its name in honor of Queen Victoria, because it was considered to be the largest and most regal of plants of its kind.

INTIMATE VIEWS OF VINALHAVEN

History, Home Life and Personal Recollections

By SIDNEY L. WINSLOW

(Third Installment)

At several places on the island, a considerable distance from the shore, one often encounters large deposits of cobblestones or beach rock, which, we are told, are glacial deposits. Other evidences of the glacial era are often found on the face of the ledges whose surfaces were smoothed by millions of tons of moving ice.

As previously stated, there is at no point any great elevation of land yet Vinalhaven has many hills. The tallest of these is known as Barren Mountain, near the northern end of the State highway between Vinalhaven and North Haven, which is 240 feet high; next is Isle au Haut Mountain, so called, with an elevation of 180 feet.

Just how Isle au Haut Mountain got its name there is no record though it is generally presumed that it is because of the fact that from this hill one may obtain an unobstructed view of the island which bears that name. However the name of this Vinalhaven hill is generally pronounced as if spelled "Isle or Hoyt," by Vinalhaven folk, although they speak of the island as though spelled "El or Ho."

Yet, not so many years ago both hill and island were pronounced by the local populace as if spelled "Isle or Hoyt."

The following poem taken from the "Vinalhaven Echo" a local news sheet dated May 1888, very aptly bears out this statement. The poem is probably the brain child of the Echo's wide awake editor, the late Charles Healey.

ISLE AU HAUT

A maiden, once bright Summer's day Viewed pensively the Eastern Bay This lovely maid had just come down From the rustic shades of an inland town.

She said "There seems to be a sort Of cloud half hiding Isle or Hoyt." Just then appeared upon the scene A stately girl with brow serene. Her words as she spoke a moment later, Proclaimed her a city rusticator.

"How beautiful the mist doth flow Like a bridal veil over El or Ho." A fishhawk girl was next to come, Gaily snapping her crewing gum. With head erect as a yearling colt Said, "It's some darned foggy round Isle or Hoyt."

Starboard Rock at the mouth of Pleasant River is next in height and is a popular rendezvous for picnickers as are the two little hills at Crockett's Point which are referred to as Big Tip-toe and Little Tip-toe.

Big Tip-toe commands a view of the entire length of Crockett's Point and River with its quaint and interesting countryside, while Little Tip-toe, not to be outdone, gives the visitor a noble view of the cold Maine coastline skirted by the beckoning Camden Hills, the broad expanse of Penobscot Bay and River mouth, while in the foreground on the Vinalhaven side are discovered the dark old Sugar Loaf Ledges, ancient guardians of the entrance to Fox Island Thoroughfare and nestling in the shelter of Little Tip-toe is a cut or gorge formed or Station.

On the eastern side of Little Tip-toe is a cut or gorge formed or hewed by Mother Nature through the solid granite. This gorge is about 20 feet wide and 300 feet long.

Many Tide Powers

There are many tide powers in Vinalhaven, which in former years have been utilized for the sawing of lumber and grinding of mill products. Among the most prominent of these are Carver's Mill-stream, so called, the cascade which lashes under the bridge on Main street. One of the first grist mills ever operated in Vinalhaven, and of which I will have much to say later, was situated on the bank of this stream and was owned and operated by Francis Cogswell of Ipswich, Mass., in the late 1700's.

Other mill sites in town may be found at Mill River, Crockett's River, The Basin, so called, and Old Harbor.

The First Inhabitants

It sometimes seems that when Columbus came to the new world he looked upon a land that had but recently been created yet who can tell what centuries and centuries have passed since the first day old ocean began its ceaseless pounding and wearing away of the rocks and ledges which border our shores.

What strange animals or strange men, may have looked upon our island as home, ages and ages before Eric the Red, Columbus or the Cabots ever saw the light of day.

The learned folk who specialize in the study and research of matters pertaining to pre-historic man, declare that many of the shell heaps which dot our coast were deposited there more than a thousand years ago and that the flint arrowheads, spearheads, plummet, stone axes, pottery, etc., found in these shell deposits were left there by people who preceded the Indian tribes which were here when the white man first came to the new world. In several instances human bones have been unearthed from these mounds, this is considered by many to be conclusive evidence that cannibalism was practiced by some of the Indian tribes.

Lane's Island, Green's Island, the Basin, Perry's Creek, Golden Cove and many other spots on the island have yielded excellent specimens of the handicraft of these peoples of mystery.

Vinalhaven Lions

Summer Visitors' Night A Great Success With A Flock of Speakers

The Vinalhaven Lions Club observed its annual Summer Visitors' Night last Thursday night in Odd Fellows Hall, where a shorer dinner was served by a committee of the Rebekahs.

During the meal Tail Twister Frank Adams began storing up dimes for his bank and trouble for himself by slapping a few lines in approved T. T. style, but after a while he became hidden behind a big bank of lobster shells and the underground began to work.

Somehow while the T.T.'s eyes were beclouded by the steam from the hot claims his fine bank disappeared and after that the jubilant Club members refused to pay any fines, claiming it was taxation without representation.

Some business was done, including the discussion of plans for the outing on Sunday of some of the Rockland Lions Club at Smith Point in Vinalhaven. Then after the meal the tables were cleared and the boys limbered up the old larynx, ably assisted by a shaky tenor and a rumbling bass from a couple of the guests.

About this time someone thought of the missing fine bank and complaint was made to the King Lion that it had not yet shown up. The King Lion and everybody else thought it would be a good idea to conduct an investigation and the luckless T.T. was promptly haled before a court.

"A" court is about the only name that could be given to it for probably there are few courts in existence that are as flexible or as prone to snap judgments. The King Lion appointed as Judge, Lion P. B. Seiler last years' Tail Twister and well skilled and learned in the law of the jungle. As prosecuting attorney, Lion O. V. Drew was given carte blanche to prosecute and even persecute if the occasion should demand.

Attorney for the defense proved to be a dark horse, or perhaps a team of horses would be better description, for Lion Keith Carver was called up and told to do the best he could for the culprit. Lion Keith was inclined to have a great deal of sympathy for the prisoner before the bar for he had found himself in the same position when he was custodian of the bank in former years. After the arguments had all been heard along with some free for all comment by the assembly, the jury, under the foremanship of Lion George Lawry was called on for its verdict. It seemed the jury was either a bit confused on the case, or the size of the defense lawyer had them scared, for the King Lion took the case away from them and put it to a vote of the crowd. The "crowd" promptly voted that the jury was guilty and the Tail Twister was entirely innocent.

Queer guys, those Lions.

Lion Drew as Program Committee reported that he had been unable to secure a speaker for the evening, so King Lion Gilchrist, explaining that it was a bit unorthodox to do so, asked some of the guests if they would care to pinch hit and say a few words. And they responded with such good effect that the loss of the speaker was hardly noticed.

First to speak was Louis Lichtenberg of Jamaica, L. I., N. Y. who related some of the things he saw and observed in a recent trip to the Argentine. His views and observations are exactly those of author Edward Tomlinson who has an article in the current issue of Collier's entitled "Nazism's Last Stand." Mr. Lichtenberg has traveled extensively in South America and his remarks were both timely and interesting.

Other speakers were Russell Gates, Carter White, Walter Bristol, and Paul Brown. Mr. Bristol has recently purchased the late Frank Beggs property on Lane's Island and is in a fair way to become a year round Vinalhavenite. Paul Brown told a humorous story of how he helped a local fisherman dig a well in an effort to supply water for the fisherman's wife, who, according to the husband, used more water in one minute than he did in a year.

The meeting broke up at a late hour with everybody voting it a very fine meeting even if not the largest that the Club had ever managed. The guest register showed the following names: Sgt. Delwyn Webster, Maurice Teel, Keith Kittredge, Eddie Matzenbecker, all of Vinalhaven, Louis Lichtenberg, Jamaica L. I., N. Y., Roy D. Brown, Richmond, Vt., Walter Pendleton, Brookline, Mass., Earl Calder of Boston, Frank Proctor, Andover, Mass., Paul Brown, Eastview, N. Y., Harland Dearborn, Meriden, Conn., Russell Gates, Montclair, N. J. and J. Francis Sheere from Minnesota.

Visiting Lion Herb Loveless of the Somerville, Mass., Lions Club had the wonderful experience of being served with a whole custard pie with the privilege of doing what he pleased with it. What Herb did to that pie is now a matter of history. They say history repeats itself, and Herb says he does too.

Erio A. Johnston, the dynamic young president of the United States of Commerce, who believes in plain speech, recently declared:

"Some (labor) unions do not hold fair elections. In them we often find union bosses who pay themselves big salaries, and who cannot be dislodged. I have also heard of top flight corporation executives who by proxies and other devices get such control of stockholders' meetings that they become corporation bosses, who vote themselves big salaries and bonuses, and who cannot be dislodged. The American people are against both of these evils, union autocrats and corporation autocrats."

Precision casting, old in the manufacture of jewelry, surgical instruments and dental forms, is being extended into the industrial field by the impact of the war. As the result of recent research, small parts may now be successfully precision cast of metals which melt at temperatures too high for die casting, and whose shapes are too intricate for satisfactory production by powder metallurgy. In fabricating parts of critical materials where waste must be minimized, from expensive high-melting alloys, and from materials difficult to machine or forge, precision casting offers interesting possibilities. Properly handled "Ti" provides an exceptionally good surface on the part cast, solid mass, sharp outline, and dimensional accuracy within one to several thousandths of an inch, depending on the size and characteristics of the part. The foundry and the machine shop are, so to speak, joined in one act. The mechanics of procedure are relatively simple and the equipment employed is not large in unit size.

Port Clyde Vacation

Incites An Auburn Woman To Lapse Into Descriptive Story

Mary Louise Stetson spent her vacation at Port Clyde and writes interestingly of it in the Lewiston Saturday Journal. The following extracts are made:

Information, please! We asked it of Mrs. Davis, of the postmistress, of the caretaker for nine Port Clyde Summer places, of anyone who seemed likely to have information about Port Clyde. It was Mrs. Davis who told us that the village was once called Herring Gut.

The town of St. George is located on a peninsula at the extreme southern part of Knox County, and on many islands. It covers a territory of 11,026 acres. This water-broken township is made up of 11 villages, one of which is Port Clyde, at the tip of the peninsula. Tenant's Harbor, the seat of the town government, is the largest of these villages and perhaps the most centrally located.

On a ledge within easy walking distance from the Port Clyde Post Office, is a weather-worn but still attractive building bearing the sign: Ye Port Clyde Free Library. In one of the front windows hangs a Red Cross poster. Last Winter, the building was opened on Tuesday and Thursday for the making of surgical dressings. About two years ago, the library was closed. Some of the books were transferred to the library at Tenant's Harbor and some of them were sold at auction.

Camden schools open Sept. 5.

An Immunization clinic will be held Wednesday at 9 a. m. at the Elm St. Schoolhouse. The immunization is against smallpox and diphtheria, and it is advisable for all children of school age that have not already been immunized to attend the clinic.

Rev. Henry Beukelman and family are spending a two weeks' vacation at Norton's Pond.

Victor Richards has resumed his duties at the Herald office after having completed a six weeks' course at the Mergenthaler Linotype School in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. Charles Hupper and children John and Helen of Baltimore, are visiting Mr. Hooper's mother, Mrs. Alfred Newhall.

Many friends, neighbors and relatives gathered Friday evening to greet Mrs. Minnie Arau and to wish her a happy birthday. Mrs. Arau was 86 years old. Dainty refreshments were served including two prettily decorated birthday cakes. Her two granddaughters, Eleanor Brown and Beverly Arau presided over the coffee and tea tables. Mrs. Arau, or Grandma as she is affectionately known, received many lovely gifts. Lucine Arau made a short visit home from her studies at the U. of Maine.

Corp. Dorothy L. Bryant, MCWR, stationed at El Cuzco, Col., arrived last week to spend a furlough with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Bryant. She was accompanied home from Boston by her sister Mary, who will spend a week's vacation at home.

Miss Eleanor Brown and Miss Nellie Ames are spending the week visiting the latter's grandmother Mrs. M. D. Higgins at Calthace Lake, and her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reardon of Calais.

Mrs. Helen Young Hobbs, 31, died Saturday at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Young, Mechanic street. She was formerly a resident of Rockland. Funeral services will be held at the Good Funeral Parlor, today at 2 p. m.

Camp Tanglewood's sixth season ended Sunday, 204 girls having attended and many of them credited with having made their contributions to the war effort by putting in time aiding the farmers in the Camden region through weeding corn or picking beans.

Girls who have worked for at least six days were presented with the national insignia of the Crop Corps, among them Geraldine Billings, Rockland; Kathleen Poland and Nancy Brewster, Camden; Emily Smith, Warren.

The last week was filled with fun for the campers, with the first event the councilors' entertainment Wednesday evening. Each on the unit staff presented a skit and the group as a whole did some orchestra numbers.

Thursday night the annual banquet was held, with girls at each table selecting a story book after which to decorate their table, and Nancy Huggard of Brewer was toastmistress for the evening. Introductions were written in verse and songs interspersed among the program numbers.

The Grand Council Fire took place Friday night, executed by the staff. Campers came to the council ring shortly after dusk and the evening opened with a call to the council fire by Miss Gladys B. Russell, director. A candlelight ceremony was carried out by the staff and several short plays were given by the various units.

Saturday night's wind-up was the lighting of the wish-boats and sending the T-shaped pieces of wood with lighted candles resting on them down the stream. This was followed by a marshmallow and pop-corn roast.

Walt Disney's SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN DWARFS

This And That

By K. S. F.

There is a beautiful thought expressed in, "to the unseen spirit each age of the world appears far more noble than in the record it leaves behind." History and tradition tell chiefly of the self-sacrifice of men. This thought is rather downtrodden by the Second World War in this decade, yet the courage of men combines to hold together all that is best.

From "State Chait."

It looks as if the Brunswick columnist may be jealous: "Some of these days we're going coöperate, female style. We're going to paint our legs, roll up dirty dungarees, borrow the old man's shirt to hang out over them, and wind up with jet earrings and pigails. Back in 1918 all you could do to show you went to college was to wear a Greenwich Village smock."

"Though people in the city
incline to run it down,
Life is not monotonous
In a little country town.
One may not see so much my dear,
But whee-whee-ee
The things one hears!"

The women of tomorrow have a heavy burden on their shoulders, to meet the needs and the feelings nationally felt by the world. Women have great influence on character building, thus they must be true examples of courage, fortitude, and generous intelligence. Devotion to God and man is the vital need of today. Women must lead in spite of the fact most of the clergy are men. Woman's influence on all individuals will be the true foundation of the new world-to-be after this war.

A thought well to keep always in mind as one grows older. "Though your teeth may be false, your tongue can always be true."

"The problem of alcohol is a serious one. No drug addiction that we know of is as important in Western Civilization. The amount of social damage done by alcoholism is enormous and if drinking is used as a way of escape it is a futile one and over-costly."—Dr. Abraham Myerson of Boston.

Much gain in religious tolerance is acclaimed by many Navy chaplains working in this World War.
"Love" is wished as a reward to peoples of the world who need awakening to true worth of life, not petty foolish questioning of small points of no consequence in world matters for religious life.

The South wind blows
And brings wet weather.
The North gives wet and cold together.

The West wind comes brimful of rain,
The East wind drives it back again.
Then if the sun in red should set,
We know the morrow must be wet;
And if the eve is clad in grey,
The next is sure a rainy day.

Long years ago a wise man said,
"Never trouble trouble till trouble troubles you."
This very wise and earnest spread of good sense taught, is clearly true

If we today should choose to hold our Minds and hearts for best control We'd grin instead of frown at trouble
Which would increase our virtue double.

When some people say something real nice to you they usually act as if they had really spent some cold cash.

A flying fortress contains 3 1/2 miles of copper wire for purely electrical purposes; 73 electric motors, 134 light bulbs and 390 radio tubes.

Someone has said the most dangerous enemy agents are not the slick looking ones, but just ordinary persons engaged in the simple job of listening while foolish Americans talk too much.

This is the time of the year to keep in mind the best way to protect bread from mildew or getting dry quickly. When securely and keep in your refrigerator.

Proverbs 11-9: A hypocrite with his mouth destroyed his neighbor.
No manner of doubt comes to the hearts of definite Christian thinkers which furthers this thought.
True missionary movements will guarantee order in the world."

NURSE TO WED SOLDIER

Pfc. Joseph C. Robinson, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert I. Spear of Warren announce the engagement of their daughter Virginia B. R. N.
to Pfc. Joseph C. Robinson, Jr.

Miss Spear graduated from Thomaston High School and the Central Maine General Hospital School of Nursing in Lewiston. She also studied communicable disease nursing at the Boston City Hospital.

Virginia B. Spear, R. N.

At present she is doing private duty in Portland.

Pfc. Robinson is the son of Mr.
and Mrs. Joseph C. Robinson of St.
George.

He attended St. George High School. Before entering the Armed Forces he was in the lumber business with his father. He is now an Air-Borne Engineer stationed in

For The Three Vinalhaven
Youths Who Were Drowned
Near Hog Island

Bodies of the three boys Maurice Bickford, Jr., 16, Richard Bickford, 14, and Donald Hildings 16, who were drowned Aug. 14, were found by relatives and Coast Guard 10 days later, near where the outboard boat, in which they had been sailing, was discovered on the shore of Hog Island at the mouth of Pleasant River.

Maurice Jr. and Richard, brothers were sons of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Bickford Sr. Besides their father and mother they are survived by one sister Lucy and one brother John. Donald Hildings, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hildings, was an uncle to the Bickford brothers. Besides his father and mother Donald is survived by brothers, Waldron, Lawrence, Kenneth (U.S.A.) and sisters Miss Thelma Hildings, Mrs.
Maurice Bickford, Mrs. Howard Combs.

Funeral services were held Saturday in Union Church, Rev. C. S.
Mitchell, pastor officiated. The abundance of floral offerings which covered the three white caskets were silent tributes of love from relatives, neighbors and friends.
The entire community extends sincere sympathy to the bereaved families. Interment was in Cal-derwood's Neck cemetery. The bearers who served for the three were Howard Combs, Kenneth Hildings, U.S.A. Lawrence Hildings and Waldron Hildings.

Those from out of town to attend the funeral were: Mrs. Luther Burns and son Francis of North Quincy, Mass., Mrs. Gladys Wyatt,
North Quincy, Mass., Mr. and Mrs.
Clifton Look and sons Clifton Jr. and Ralph of Addison, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Bickford, Fitchburg,
Mass., Mrs. Ruth Nardo, Brookline,

Here's A Brainbuster

Warren Boy Sends Us A Peculiar Problem From Smyrna, Tennessee

Smyrna, Tenn., Aug. 22

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

I have a problem that some of your readers may be able to help me solve. I would appreciate it very much if someone could give me the correct answer.

The fireman brakeman and engineer are named Smith, Robertson and Jones but not respectively.

There are three passengers on the train whose names are Mr. Smith,
Mr. Robertson and Mr. Jones.

(1) Mr. Robertson lives in Detroit.

(2) The brakeman lives one-half way between Chicago and Detroit.

(3) Mr. Jones earns exactly $2000 per year.

(4) Smith beat the fireman at billiards.

(5) The brakeman's nearest neighbor, one of the passengers, earns three times as much as the brakeman.

(6) The passenger with the same name as the brakeman lives in Chicago.

What is the name of the brakeman, fireman, and engineer?

There is no catch and each statement is necessary to be considered in determining the names of train operators.

I am a Warren boy and read The Courier's Editions regularly. They bring home much nearer than it actually is.

'Twas Lots Of Fun

When Members Of R. H. S. '04 Gathered In Their Annual Reunion

The annual reunion of Class of 1904, Rockland High School, was held Friday night with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hills Fuller, whose charming home and delightful hospitality made the occasion a memorable one.

The great fun of the old classmates and friends greeting each other and getting acquainted all over again was followed by a lobster salad supper served by the Committee of Arrangements, Mrs. Fuller, Mrs. George Davis and Miss Ellen D. Tolman.

The tables set out of doors were prettily laid and the flower decorations done by Mrs. Fuller were in the class colors, cherry, green and white. Outstanding in the decorations was a large basket of flowers sent by Mrs. Fred True in memory of her sister, Mrs. Emma Lawrence Stanford, who was a beloved class member. This later was taken to Luke S. Davis, a class member, who is ill at his home on State street.

The business meeting was presided over by Dr. Fuller, president, and was opened with the minutes of the meeting of 1943, read by Miss Tolman, secretary. Miss Tolman also read several cards and letters of greeting, among them from Wendell Hodgkins of Winthrop, Mass.; Mrs. Laura Dowling Smith of Manchester, N. H.; Mrs. Emma Cobb Havenner, of Morgantown, W. Va.; Miss Mildred Clarke of Los Angeles, Calif.; Mrs. Annie Colley Emmons of Methuen, Mass.; and Mrs. Florence Haley Cowie of Port Sam Houston, Texas.

The gathering was fortunate and privileged in having two former teachers present, Miss Anna E. Coughlin and Miss Harriet Long of Tenants Harbor. Each spoke informally and most delightfully, Miss Coughlin reading by request from her latest book of poems, "The Master Mariner." Reminiscences contributed by these teachers were augmented by others in the group, hilarity and seriousness intermingled. Several spoke of sons and other of their kin in the country's service, many of them being overseas at present.

A nominating committee comprised Ralph Choate, David Crockett and Raymond Bird presented this slate of officers who were elected: President, Albert Wardwell; vice president, Walter H. Ladd; secretary, Miss Ellen Tolman; treasurer, Mrs. Reta Patterson Coburn; committee on arrangements and transportation, Mr. Choate, Mr. Crockett and Mrs. Davis.

After all business matters were disposed of beautiful colored moving pictures were shown by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Trecartin, covering their travels.

A rising vote of thanks was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Fuller for their hospitality, and to Miss Tolman for the interest and care she puts into making these annual class gatherings a reality and for the ice cream which she contributes each year.

Present were: Graduates, Mrs. Elizabeth Whitman Davis, Mrs. Reta Patterson Coburn, Mrs. Evelyn Richardson McKusick, Raymond S. Bird, Donald Hills Fuller, Albert Wardwell, of Rockland; Miss Ellen Dean Tolman of Auburn, Mass.; Mrs. Gladys Jones Heistad of Rockport; Mrs. Frances Butler Sherer of Rockville; David E. Crockett of Camden. Class members not graduating: Walter H. Ladd, Ralph Choate, Mrs. Frida Porter Brackett, Mrs. Kate Donahue Gould, of Rockland; Mrs. Margaret Perry Marshall of Port Clyde. Guests: Miss Coughlin, Miss Long, George Davis, Mrs. Walter Ladd, Mrs. Ralph Choate, H. O. Heistad, Mrs. Albert Wardwell, Mrs. Lee Oliver, and Mrs. Fuller.

OUR C. A. P. CADETS AT DOW FIELD

Seventy seven C. A. P. students, representing every corner of Maine, have just finished a week's training at Dow Field big Air Transport Command Base at Bangor.

Directly in command of Cadets was 2d Lieutenant William Shea of Portland. Supervising the entire program was Captain James McPherson, of South Portland.

Strict military discipline was the order of the week for the Dow Field C. A. P. Cadets, because all of these 16 or 17 year olders intend to enter the Army Air Forces. The C. A. P. Squadrons and Flights which comprise the Maine Wing, represent the future flying strength of America.

There were interesting practical demonstrations on chemical warfare conducted by Lieut. Herman Lose, Chemical Warfare Officer. Demonstrations of thermate, white phosphorus, magnesium, primacord, tear gas, and other chemical warfare agents were eagerly watched by the boys. Films on gas warfare, and gas decontamination, were shown—and films and talk on first aid for gas treatment.

Caliber machine gun—let the boys handle them, and find out themselves what they looked and felt like. The boys had a great time with this weapon demonstration. Another demonstration took the men through the quartermaster Warehouses, to study all the different items of G. I. issue available to Air Corps soldiers. The boys particularly enjoyed their new G. I. shoes.

But the demonstration that most of them enjoyed particularly, was their visit to the Hanger Line and their opportunity to visit a Flying Fortress and inspect it from stem to stern. Guided by the crew, they tried out every seat looked through every window and asked a host of questions.

Robert A. Stevenson, of 2 Eaton Avenue, Camden, said: "The Army Air Corps is swell, from what I have seen of it. Most of us had blisters from drilling, but the most interesting thing that happened was when we went on the flight line and went through the planes and hangers. We had evenings off to go to the movies, day rooms, gym, and P. X. I talked to a gunner, engineer and a bombardier, and they told me some very interesting things, especially the engineer—who told about his experiences in Burma, China, and India."

Warren George of 331 Pleasant street Rockland, had still another approach:

"I met a gunner and engineer from a B-24. The interesting thing about them was extremely high morale. It sort of does your heart good to know you have someone like that fighting for you, so to speak."

The boys got plenty of chow—good army chow. One boy wrote home that he thought that all the food in the world was stored at Dow Field. At first the boys were a little picky—unish about eating—but as soon as they got into the swing of things, they were hungry as bears all the time. And no wonder, with the exercising and drilling that they got. Highlight of the week for the men, was standing formal retreat in front of headquarters building and having their own guard of honor take down the flag. As the bugler blew "to the colors," the men came to present arms, and remained rigidly at hand salute until the last notes had faded into the distance, and the flag was safely clasped in the arms of the color guard.

C. A. P. Cadets attending the incampment at Dow Field included: Carl Gray, 56 Talbot Avenue; Douglas Heline, West Meadow Road; Douglas MacWilliams, 26 Chestnut street; Warren George, 331 Pleasant street; Kenneth Chatto, 35 McLoud street; Robert Margeson, 26 Rankin street; Richard Simmons, 87 Pleasant street; John Brann, 353 Camden street; all of Rockland and Robert Stevenson, 2 Eaton avenue, Camden.

British War Relief

A Report Which Will Gratify Workers Here In Maine

John M. O'Connell, managing editor of the Bangor Daily News who is representing his paper in the British war zone writes in strong approval of the work being done by the British War Relief Society, which has branches in Maine, including Camden. His article being copyrighted cannot be reprinted in full, but here a few timely extracts:

"Officials with whom I talked seemed only interested in getting across one message to America, that appreciation for what people in our country have done for the British War Relief. I think America should know a little more than this and I'm going to tell you a little about their work."

"The day I visited the huge clothing room where every article received from America is carefully sorted, marked with size tags and put away on shelves in the proper department, Mrs. Helen Spinola, had received a request that would have stumped some pretty large men's clothing stores. I dare say, she received an order for the family of a fireman who had a 48-inch waist and a 50-inch chest. Believe me, Mrs. Spinola had this garment in stock."

"Almost every possible kind of garment in this huge stockroom and the marking is no small task. Every item has to be marked with the coupon value of the clothing as well as the size. To guard against any possible black market, or selling of coupons, the recipient of these articles surrender the equivalent of their clothing coupons. All articles of essential clothing here are rationed."

"Sometimes the donors of clothing receive most appreciative letters from those who receive the goods. The matron in charge suggested that if persons contributing articles of clothing slipped their name and address into a pocket or pinned it on the garment this would happen often."

"Children's coats, shoes, blankets, etc., are always in demand and the manner in which the stockroom is arranged now in preparation for the coming Winter would be a credit to any large department store.

"The New York branch of the British War Relief has recently purchased bundles and bundles of sheeting (it's a windproof and waterproof article) that has been furnished to the hospitals here for their windows as a protection during the buzz bombing now being experienced in this area. The day I visited this center the office had just sent a shipment to a nearby hospital that had already been bombed four times."

"It is not unusual to have a week in which 5,000 garments would be handled in this branch. Every request is investigated by the Firemen's Relief organization or some other unit of a similar nature before it reaches the British War Relief unit. The entire setup is systematized in an amazing manner and the administration is supervised by the highest type of personnel and volunteer workers."

"Mrs. Spinola picked up a colored comic section of one of our newspapers and said: 'Tell your folks when they are wrapping bundles to drop a few of these in the boxes. I don't know of anything that does as much good when a fireman or some other worker comes in with his family. The funnies keep every body happy while we're working.'"

"The huge wooden boxes, in another room awaiting unpacking, from America resembled crates that one would see at an airport or dock connected with some big Army project. This proposition is really handled on a tremendous scale."

"Mrs. C. R. Wheeler, the secretary, said: 'O You have no idea how we appreciate what America has done and is doing. I only wish there were some way we could thank everybody personally.'"

"Alice Gardiner, sister of Maine's former governor, Col. William Tudor Gardiner, has been one of the most steady workers in this organization. As soon as England went to war she started from the U. S. to work for British War Relief. She came very near being kept in Italy taking the last plane from there that was permitted to leave after war was declared. After over four years of work here in England Alice Gardiner is planning now to return to the U. S. and while there will report to British War Relief societies all over the country about the work that has been accomplished."

Lincoln Is Alive

Republican Leaders Found Neighboring County In a Receptive Mood

Constructive criticism of Maine's Old Age Assistance law was offered by Horace Hildreth, Republican gubernatorial candidate in speaking at a political meeting in Damascus Thursday night.

The Maine Senate president said that he opposed the present portion of the law which requires that the State take a lien on the real estate property of any recipient of old age assistance.

The second revision which he advocated was to eliminate the requirement that such recipients make a report on how they spend their State aid.

"At best this old age assistance provides only bare subsistence," he declared. "Consequently, I believe that they should be allowed to spend their money as they desire, without being required to submit detailed statements on their personal expenses."

sonal expenses."

Rep. Margaret Chase Smith, candidate for re-election to Congress, told the Lincoln County voters of the important part that the Republicans are playing in securing the passage of a sound and workable surplus products bill.

"The Republicans in the House," she said, "are fighting for State control, rather than Federal, over unemployment insurance." "Important measures coming up for action next week, she said, include re-conversion, the shifting of workers to peace jobs, and steps to encourage the expansion of private business."
